The Best Maté Recipes in Town

Our Energy Teas don't use no flavors to accomplish some oh-so-tasty results. That means when Green Tea Yerba Maté has a nice hint of orange, we brewed up some orange peel to get there. And when you feel a vibrant lemon rush from our Lemon Ginger Black Tea Maté, it's because organic lemongrass and lemon verbena jumped into the hot kettle party at 180 degrees with our maté and black tea. Simply put, these are flavored by nature, not a chemist.

Llama-Load of Antioxidants

Each bottle has 6 times the antioxidant value of a serving of green tea and over 8 times a serving of blueberries. Need more than that? Drink two and drink them free radicals batty.

Less Sugar, Tastes Great

When you brew up only super primo organic ingredients that actually come from real things, you don't really need to mask the flavor with tons of sugar. So, we decided to use no more than 7 grams of sugar per serving in our Energy Teas. That's right, about half of what everybody else uses.

Pure Energy. Balanced Buzz.

Maté naturally contains caffeine, as well as 2 other 'cousins' to caffeine (theobromine and theophylline). Combined, they give an energy kick that won't leave you drooping or demand your addiction. Plus, it is natural-certified organic even. Energy Tea has 150mg of caffeine per bottle. Drink Deep. You're Safe Here.

Clean and Green

Pixie Maté sells only stuff that is organic and our maté comes from a third generation family farm that is committed to sustainability. They (and us with them) are working on reforestation projects right now and with every bottle we sell we move towards bigger environmental undertakings in South America. Also, our maté ain't smoke dried and we filter out the stems. The result is a crisp, clean yerba maté flavor that tastes bodaciously wonderful.
